2.4 "Confidential information" within the meaning of this policy means "Confidential information" as described in detail in Article 6.2 hereof.

3. Purpose of the Policy for the Prevention and Response of Conflict of Interest Situations

This Policy seeks to define cases of conflict of interest, identify and record them and ultimately to manage them effectively for the smooth operation of the Company.

Specifically, the following is sought:

- The indicative recording of situations in which conflict of interest situations may arise that are detrimental to the interests of the Company, its shareholders its customers and its suppliers.

4.4 The "covered person" during the assignment of tasks receives a copy of this Policy, studies it and after fully understanding it and accepting its content, signs a relevant commitment statement.

5. Indicative examples of conflict of interest

A conflict of interest situation can occur in any of the following cases:

- When a "covered person" or a "related person" gains financial benefit for itself or acts for the benefit of a competitor, customer or supplier by receiving financial interests or participating in the profits of a competitor, customer or supplier of the Company.

When a "covered person" or a "related person" has a financial or other incentive to favor the interests of a particular customer or supplier at the expense of the interests of another customer or supplier.

- When a "covered person" or a "related person" uses for personal gain or for the benefit of another the information, assets and resources of the Company.
- When a "covered person" conducts work or provides assistance to any third party, in a way that affects his performance or judgment in his work in the Company.
- When a "covered person" through its acts, negatively affects the Company's reputation and its relations with third parties.

6. Detection, deterrence and management of conflict of interest situations

Cases of conflict of interest situations can be identified in the context of periodic or extraordinary internal audits carried out, or by any report from an executive or employee of the Company. The Company adopts a series of organizational measures and procedures, which it continuously improves, for different types of conflicts of interest that have been identified, in order to avoid possible situations in the future and to be able to manage, control and prevent possible negative effects on its own interests, its shareholders, its customers and its suppliers, such as:

6.1 Independence, separate supervision and separation of functions and tasks.

The Company takes organizational measures to structure its Departments in separate "Pillars" to ensure separate supervision and separation of its functions, services or activities, in order to prevent the simultaneous involvement of the Company's organizational Units in different services or activities, which may lead to conflict of interest situations or possibly impede the proper management of such situations.

6.2 Confidential information and their management.

For the purposes of this Policy, "confidential information" means that contained in the knowledge of the covered persons in any way and in any material or intangible form (written or electronic or oral), without necessarily being marked "Confidential" or "Secret", about:

- any commercially important information, for the organization, services, financial structure, financial policy, collaborations and Company Investment;
- any information classified by current legislation as confidential;
- any information managed by the Company in the context of its operation and relates indicatively to issues of human resources, internal operation and management, regulatory adjustment, corporate strategy and development (eg progress reports on the implementation of business plan / budget, minutes of BoD meetings. etc.);
- any important information on announcements, organization, preparation and conduct of tenders and the general procedure for the tenders award which are included, indicatively and not restrictively, in business plans and orders of the Management of PPA SA, in discussions during the work of the tender committees, in internal electronic and printed correspondence, in electronic and printed correspondence to and from external collaborators / consultants of PPA SA, in unpublished documents and reports of PPA SA regarding the tendering tenders, but also in documents, information and data contained in the files of natural persons and / or companies participating in the tenders and other relevant.

"Confidential Information" excludes information that has already been made public on the initiative of the Company under its obligations as they arise from its Legislative and Regulatory framework, as well as information at the time that the Contractors / Customers / Suppliers of the Company gain access to them according to the formal policies/regulations/procedures of the Company.

6.2.1 Management of confidential information.

- Management of information and ensuring its confidentiality, in accordance with the provisions in force, is one of the basic principles governing the activities of the Company.
- The access to confidential information is limited to those persons who need to know confidential information in the context of their duties within the Company ("need to know basis"). This avoids, as far as possible, the misuse of this information, as well as possible conflicts of interest.
- The above policy of confidentiality is also ensured by the information systems of the Company, which do not allow access to information that is not considered necessary for the performance of a specific job. Consequently, the Organizational Units have access only to that information / data, which are considered necessary for the fulfillment of their duties within the Company.

6.2.2 Implementation of "Chinese Walls" between the Organizing Units.

In order to protect and control access to important information that is not available to the public, the Company implements a system of "Chinese Walls", designed to prevent the leakage of confidential information between its organizational units. The operation of this system includes not only the separation of data and computer systems, but also the physical separation of the various Units, so that there is no direct physical access to files and information concerning the object of another Unit.

Through the establishment and implementation of these "Chinese Walls", the Company creates barriers to the flow of information to ensure that critical information held by one Unit is not used by individuals in another Unit when it is not necessary in the performance of its duties.

6.3 Implementation of "Declaration of Independence" submission procedure in tender procedures.

The Company applies a process of completing and submitting a "Declaration of Independence" not only by the "covered" persons, but as a best practice, by the participants in competitive tender procedures of the Company. The participants in the tender procedures of the Company, before assuming their duties, sign a relevant statement by filling in a relatively formulated questionnaire to identify any dependent relationships with the bidders. The Procurement Department takes care of the collection of the signed declarations of independence by tender process and participant (members of Tender Management and Evaluation Team respectively and Consultants), keeping a relevant file. In case of declaration of such a relationship or situation that indicates any dependence, the consideration as independent or not of the declarant for his participation in the tender process is evaluated (following relevant notification from the Procurement Department) in principle by the Head of the Internal Audit Department who submits his proposal to the President of the Tender Management Committee which makes a final decision, with the aim of identifying and preventing situations of conflict of interest for the benefit of one bidder and to the detriment of others.

Relevant decisions of the Management determine the categories of participants who are obliged to submit the above Declaration of Independence, before each respective stage of the process.

6.4 Implementation of the Conflict of Interest Declaration and Confidentiality submission process.

In order to effectively identify and prevent situations of conflict of interest, the Company has established an obligation to submit a declaration of non-conflict of interest of the members of the Board of Directors as well as members of Top Management, who are obliged at least¹ at the beginning of each year to submit such declarations with the content presented in the Annex of the policy.

In addition to the above declaration and as a further verification and cross-check of the Independent Members declaration's content accuracy, the following certificates are collected by the Board of Directors Secretariat:

- Certification from the Financial Management Department, that after checking the accounting records and books, the candidate for election as BoD Independent member does not receive fees or benefits, except his remuneration (in case of re-election) for his term of office as a BoD member.

¹ as well as before the election or renewal of their term of office

- Certification by the Legal Department that, following check of the contract archive maintained, the candidate for election or re-election as an Independent BoD member has not signed into any type of contract with the Company.

- Certification from the BoD Secretariat, Public Relations & Investors Relations Department, that following a check of the Shareholding Registry, the candidate for election or re-election as an Independent BoD member, does not own a percentage of the Company's shares equal to or greater than 0.5%.

A relevant invitation to submit the declarations is sent to the members of the Board of Directors and Top Management by the Board Secretariat, which maintains a relevant electronic register. All annual declarations should be notified to Regulatory Compliance Unit which will examine any conflict of interest occurrence situation. In case a specific incident of conflict occurs, it should be reported to Audit Committee. Audit Committee could order relevant audit control by Internal Audit Department if necessary. The result of audit procedure will be communicated by Audit Committee to BoD for final decision according to article 9.

7.5 Board members' fees

The Company has established and applies principles and rules regarding the remuneration of the members (executive and non-executive) of the Board of Directors (BoD), in a transparent, clear and understandable manner in accordance with the Company's Remuneration Policy in order not to encourage behaviors which may lead to situations of conflict of interest or the taking of excessive risks. In this direction, the Remuneration Committee of the Company's Board of Directors operates as an independent and objective body, consisting of non-executive members, the majority of whom are independent, in order to provide guidance in a transparent manner on issues related to the remuneration of the Board members and Top Management.

8. Education and communication

The Company provides ongoing training and information on matters of conflict of interest to all "covered persons". In particular, the following measures are adopted:

- The Company systematically enhances the vigilance of personnel regarding situations of conflict of interest.
- The Company develops the ability of personnel to identify and manage conflict of interest situations, through ongoing training provided by competent Managers and/or external partners.
- The Regulatory Compliance Department communicates directly with the "covered persons" on a case-by-case basis, when necessary, to ensure that they are sufficiently aware of their obligations regarding conflict of interest situations.

9. Monitoring of conflict of interest situations

In order to timely diagnose and deal with possible situations of conflict of interest:

The Internal Audit Department reports to the BoD of the Company cases of conflict of private interests of the BoD Members or Executives with the interests of the Company, which they ascertain during the exercise of their duties.

In the event of a conflict of interest being identified, the Board of Directors undertakes to deal with it, deciding on any corrective measures or consequences, including their escalation according to the seriousness of the situation and the potential invitation of negative consequences to the Company's interests (indicative and not limited to: temporary removal from the position of responsibility, suspension of performance of duties, non-continuation of performance of duties, imposition of penalties provided for by law). These cases are recorded accordingly by IAD and are kept in a respective file.

PPA S.A. remains committed to zero tolerance for behaviors and practices that may promote corruption or unethical competition. To communicate this, a series of policies guiding on how to avoid, prevent, mitigate and address corruption is established, namely the Code of Conduct \(CoC\), the Code against Corruption and Bribery and the Internal Organization and Operation Regulation. We manage and remedy any incident of corruption and bribery, and we diligently follow all relevant procedures, training, due diligence and transactions recording. The Port of Piraeus promotes suppliers’ interests as the management of relationships with suppliers and contractors is largely defined in both the Code of Conduct and the Company’s Contracts and Sub concessions Regulation.

Stakeholder Engagement

The Port of Piraeus is a focal point where stakeholder interaction is ongoing. We strive to maintain open and effective communication channels, to build mutual trust and collaboration so as to identify and monitor stakeholder concerns, needs and expectations.

We are strengthening the engagement through collaborations with charitable organizations and non-governmental entities, as well as active and substantial support on diverse initiatives for vulnerable social groups and the broader community. Our social contribution centers on social engagement, solidarity and educational initiatives.

On the top of the above, we maximize our contribution to the local communities through the establishment of jobs across multiple career roles.
